

Steubenville Herald-Star
Tue., July 21, 2009

'Refuse to be a Victim' course set

The Follansbee Police Department Community Watch Program, partnered with RSVP, will be sponsoring a Crime Prevention and Personal Safety Course "Refuse to be a Victim."

The course is designed to teach people how to better protect themselves, their family and friends. It covers safety in the home, safety for parents and children, personal safety, automobile security, workplace safety, travel security, safety for senior citizens and persons with disabilities, technological security and personal protection devices.

Tom Bell is instructor and the cost will be between $20 and $25, depending on the number of persons interested. Registration is requested by July 31. Classes are scheduled Aug. 11 and 18 from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the Brooke County Senior Center. Call the office at (304) 527-3410 to register.